Journeys of Paul Fatih Cimok

This book is intended primarily as a companion for Paul's complete journeys, but mainly for the three missionary journeys and his voyage to Rome, all mentioned in the Acts of the Apostles. It has been prepared by a former tour guide with a traveller of Pauline places in mind. Almost all of the countries, routes and sites mentioned in the book have been visited by its author and editor, often more than once. Effort has been spent to keep the information which is not directly related to Paul's journeys and to the first century CE to a minimum. Plenty of interesting sites which are not yet within the easy reach of common travellers, in other words, within the paths of commercial tour itineraries, have been left out. The reader will notice that special effort has been spent to inform him about the routes Paul may have taken during his journeys, what the possibilities were of tracks and what Paul would have seen in the cities where he proclaimed the Gospel, with emphasis on Ephesus where he stayed longest. In addition, Ephesus is the only site whose ruins can give us the atmosphere of a Pauline metropolis.
