One of the most popular and fastest-growing hobby-crafts in the world today is making miniature houses and furnishing them with period and contemporary designs. This book fills the gap between miniatures intended as "toys" and museum-quality pieces intended for display. It shows how to make houses and furniture strong enough for children to appreciate yet elegant enough for adults to enjoy for themselves. It is directed to beginning and intermediate builders, and shows, with simple techniques, how to achieve beautiful results using inexpensive materials and simple tools.
