Tensão e ameaças na nova investigação de Maria Kallio

No coração de uma floresta selvagem do sul da Finlândia, em uma magnífica mansão, Elina Rosberg fundou um centro de terapia para acolher mulheres com os mais diversos problemas. Isolado da cidade, o local proíbe a entrada de homens.

No dia seguinte ao Natal, o corpo de Elina é encontrado na neve, com o rosto coberto pela geada. Acidente? Assassinato? Na lista de suspeitos estão as mulheres presentes no momento da tragédia, como a jovem mãe de nove filhos, membro de uma seita religiosa, e uma stripper do bairro boêmio de Helsinque. Um poeta em voga, com quem Elina mantinha um relacionamento, parece ter algo a esconder e também está entre os suspeitos.

Está nas mãos da inspetora Maria Kallio desvendar esse crime, mas ela passa por um momento difícil: recém-casada, sofre de náuseas e de um estranho cansaço, e ainda tem de lidar com as constantes ameaças que recebe desde que se envolveu na investigação. Ela, porém, não se deixa abater e mergulha de cabeça. A tensão, que cresce a cada página, faz deste romance policial um suspense garantido até o último momento.
